Celebration goes on Party held by WEIU despite rain

By VICKY WOLSTENHOLME
Staff Writer

Despite the heavy rains in the early afternoon, the birthday celebration party for WEIU-TV (Channel 51) and WEIU-FM (88.9) had waiting lines for many of its events, some of which were moved inside Buzzard Gym.

"I think the celebration is doing fine despite the rains. We have lines of people for the pony rides and for the free hot dogs and soda. Even McGruff's finger printing is doing well," said WEIU membership manager Linda Meissen. "We plan to do it again next year, since this one is doing so well. Only this time we hope for it not to rain and to actually have music on the lawn and not in the gym," said Meissen.

"I think we have passed out 150 to 200 balloons," said Deb Rawls, public relations representative of Hour House in Charleston. "I think that is a lot more than what we had

Bork announced for Supreme Court seat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan picked Robert H. Bork, a staunchly conservative appeals court judge, for a Supreme Court seat Wednesday, risking a bruising showdown with the Democratic-ruled Senate over his confirmation.

If seated, Bork could be instrumental in helping alter some of the court's landmark decisions, such as a woman's right to an abortion and the principle of affirmative action.

Announcing Bork's selection, Reagan praised him as "a premier constitutional authority" and said, "His outstanding intellect and unrivaled scholarly credentials are reflected in his thoughtful examination of the broad, fundamental issues of our times."

The 60-year-old Bork was the top choice of hardline conservatives to succeed Justice Lewis F. Powell, 79, who announced last Friday he was leaving the bench because of health problems and his age.

Bork is best known nationally for carrying out then-President Nixon's order in 1973 to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox after two higher officials refused. At the time, he was Nixon's solicitor general.

Reagan called on the Senate to confirm Bork before the court's new term in October, but Democrats served notice they wanted to examine his qualifications thoroughly. Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., a member of the Judiciary Committee, said, "The Senate is going to carry out its constitutional role...with probably more scrutiny than anything this decade."

Leahy said he could not envision Bork being confirmed before Congress' August recess. He said that with Bork on the nation's highest court, "his vote would determine that abortions would not be legal today. I think we have to take a look at that."

Bork once said that the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion was "a classic instance" of the court imposing its morality on local jurisdictions. He said abortion should be a matter of local control.

Privately, White House officials said they expected a tough fight in getting Bork's nomination through

Bork praised by Thompson

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. James R. Thompson on Wednesday praised the nomination of federal appeals judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court, calling him "a brilliant man... an extraordinary legal scholar."

Thompson, who spent four years as U.S. attorney in Chicago, said he worked with Bork while Bork was U.S. solicitor general and acting attorney general in the Nixon administration.

"I think he's a fine appointment," Thompson said. "He's conservative, but the president has the right to appoint a conservative justice."

"He will respect Supreme Court precedent, I believe. He's not an ideologue."

Thompson recalled flying to Washington to discuss with Bork a contempt-of-court case against two lawyers in the highly publicized "Conspiracy Seven" trial.

Thompson said Bork picked him up personally at the airport in a battered car, and after a lunch of cheeseburgers and martinis, they decided to press for a new trial.

"He's a very human, humble kind of guy," Thompson said.

Nonetheless, Thompson said Bork might face tough confirmation hearings in the Democratic-controlled Senate.

"I don't think anybody would have an easy time with so many presidential candidates sitting on the (Senate) Judiciary Committee, but if they respect judicial statesmanship, they'll confirm him," he said.

the Judiciary Committee, and then expected a filibuster from opponents on the Senate floor.

The Supreme Court is in recess until October.

He stood next to Reagan, without speaking, as the president announced his nomination in the White House press briefing room. Reagan also refused to take questions.

Council votes

Spillway bid delayed by omission

By GRETCHEN IVES
City/entertainment editor

The Charleston City Council Wednesday voted to move the bid approval for the spillway reconstruction to its July 21 meeting.

The bid approval was moved because of an "omission in a price quote from Mautz and Owen of Effingham making their final bid incorrect," said City Council Executive Assistant Chris Bezruki.

"Many specifications go into making the price quotes. Mautz and Owens left out an anti-corrosive unit on the inlet valve to the generator of the hydro-electric unit to prevent rusting," said Bezruki.

"The delay in the bid approval will not delay the construction of the spillway," said Bezruki.

The Council also passed an amending ordinance that restricts parking to two hours on Lincoln Avenue from 4th Street to Division Street.

In other business, the Council put on file for public inspection an amending ordinance that requires licensing of junk dealers and an annual inspection of the premises.

A resolution authorizing the expenditure of $2,100 of city tourism funds was also placed on file. The funds will be paid through the city Tourism Board to have a Charleston Visitor's Guide brochure "designed and created," said Bezruki. "The lowest bid was not taken for the project because of the professionalism that the project encompasses. The price includes the printing of approximately 5,000 copies of the brochure," continued Bezruki.

In another resolution, the council passed a change in the water and sewer revenue bonds series 1987 that increased the amount of bonds to be sold from $1.3 million to $16.4 million. The council can issue up to $2.5 million in bonds. These bonds do not include the hydro-electric unit.

The council then adjourned into closed session to discuss the appointment of a city engineer.

Koreans prepare for talks

SEOUL, South Korea—The government Wednesday drew up a list of a hundred political prisoners to be released after President Chun Doo hwan agreed to protestors preparing for joint talks next week to implement reforms, overhaul the constitution and hold direct presidential elections by the fall.

Chun bowed to opposition to end years of authoritarian government after 18 days of violent protests by hundreds of thousands of people demanding his ouster.

"Because social stability and national harmony were being undermined by the recent continuing demonstrations and strife, I believe that you, my fellow countrymen, not only experienced serious inconvenience and anxiety but were also worried that catastrophe might befall the nation," Chun said in a special address to the nation Wednesday.

Communists to institute reforms

BEIJING—The Communist government will institute reforms this fall to increase democracy and decentralize authority, as outlined in a speech by Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, newspapers said today.

The 1980 speech, reprinted today in commemoration of the 66th anniversary of the Communist party's founding, covered the front page of the official party newspaper People's Daily and several other papers.

An accompanying editorial described it as the "guiding document on political structural reform" to be implemented at a major party congress this fall.

The editorial said reforms would include separation of party and government functions, granting greater power to lower-level government bodies, reforming the managerial system, increasing democracy and improving the legal system.

Cargo plane crashes in exercise

FORT BRAGGS, N.C.—A C-130 cargo plane with six crewmen aboard crashed and burned on a runway at Fort Bragg during a training exercise today, narrowly missing a grandstand full of spectators, officials and a witness said.

Col. Jim Jannett, an Air Force spokesman at the Pentagon, said the plane from adjacent Pope Air Force Base crashed at about 10 a.m.

Officials at the air base said the conditions of the six crewmen were not immediately known. The statement said the plane was taking part in a joint Army-Air Force exercise when it crashed.

Janet Hundley, a reporter for WAAL-TV who witnessed the crash, said the plane was using a technique in which a parachute pulls a tank or other vehicle out the rear cargo door when the plane is just a few feet above the ground.

Sears recalls bicycle child seat

WASHINGTON—Certain bicycle child carriers sold by Sears, Roebuck and Co. are being recalled because the shoulder-harness buckle could disengage, allowing the child to fall out, the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Wednesday.

The Championship Deluxe Bicycle Child Carriers, sold nationally by Sears, were made by D'R Industries, Inc., of Lincolnwood, Ill., the safety agency said.

The recall involves carriers sold for about $40 between February and July of 1986. They carried the stock number 82595 on the outside of the box.

The Safety Commission reported that the problem occurs with the plastic buckle on the shoulder strap of the seat harness, which may disengage while in use. Six instances in which the buckle failed to work correctly have been reported, the agency said.

Specialists remove Russian mines

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. specialists operating from small craft removed between 10 and 12 mines they think were laid by Iran near Kuwaiti ports, and the Pentagon plans to send minesweeping helicopters to Kuwait to deal with any further threat, Reagan administration sources said Wednesday.

The mines "were Russian-made, and are believed to have been procured from North Korea," a leading supplier of arms to Iran since the start of the Iran-Iraq war nearly seven years ago, said a Pentagon source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A State Department official, also requesting anonymity, said the mines were laid in the approaches to Kuwait's main port of Al-Ahmadi "relatively recently. And the indications were that they had been placed there by Iran."

The mines were moored with weights to the sea bottom, and were designed to float just beneath the surface and explode when struck, said the Pentagon source.

They were removed by an 18-member Explosion Ordinance Disposal team, operating from small craft, said the defense source. The craft are not counted among the six U.S. ships now operating in the gulf.

The Pentagon plans to supplement the team with MH-53D helicopters capable of removing mines, defense sources said. They declined to say when the copters might go.

The mines were apparently dropped into the water from small boats, possibly fishing craft operating in the area, said the sources.

President Reagan announced Tuesday that he was overriding congressional opposition and going ahead with his plans to place 11 Kuwaiti tankers under the American flag and provide them with U.S. naval escort in and out of the gulf.

Iran has responded to Reagan's reflagging plan by threatening Kuwait and the United States.

The revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has not used its most potent military weapon, about 24 Chinese-made Silkworm anti-ship missiles that are believed to be stored in the Iranian port of Bancar Abbas, according to Pentagon sources.

Contra silence broken by North

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fired White House aide Oliver L. North, ending seven months of silence, underwent questioning Wednesday about President Reagan's role in the Iran-Contra affair and said he planned to tell the truth to congressional investigators.

Wearing his olive-green Marine Corps uniform with six rows of decorations, North smiled as he entered a green-carpeted room in the basement of the Rayburn House Office Building for a private interrogation by House and Senate lawyers.

"What do you plan to tell them?" a reporter asked.

"The truth," North replied.

"Is there anything you'd like to say to us?"

"Have a nice day," he said with a smile.

North then took his seat for questioning by Arthur L. Liman, chief counsel for the Senate investigative committee, and John Nields, the top lawyer for the House panel.

The two committees had served notice last week that the initial private session with North would focus on the extent of Reagan's involvement in the secret effort once led by North to assist Nicaraguan rebels using profits from arms sales to Iran.

Considered the prime target of a separate criminal investigation by independent counsel Lawrence Walsh, the Marine lieutenant colonel also sent his lawyers to a federal court hearing to press North's legal challenge of Walsh's authority.

North, who was fired as a beauty on the National Security Council staff last Nov. 25, has been portrayed in testimony as the central figure in organizing and directing a private foreign policy network involving millions of dollars in secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and diversion of the proceeds to help Nicaragua's Contra insurgents.

North's private testimony, a prelude to unlimited public questioning scheduled to begin next Tuesday, was compelled by a grant of limited immunity from prosecution by the House and Senate Iran-Contra committees. North can still be prosecuted on evidence obtained independently of his congressional testimony.

Assembly rejects state tax hike

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois General Assembly has sent Gov. James R. Thompson a $20.2 billion state budget that everyone concedes must be shaved, but deciding just what to cut could produce a summer of fiscal fireworks.

"He's the captain of the ship," Senate Appropriations Chairman Howard Carroll, D-Chicago, said of Thompson. "It's his watch."

Despite a last-minute flap over funding levels for the state Department of Mental Health, lawmakers insist their no-tax increase budget for the fiscal year which started Wednesday will maintain essential state services and avoid huge layoffs of state workers.

The state spending plan was approved with overwhelming bi-partisan support in both chambers after lawmakers showed no interest in boosting taxes as the Republican governor suggested.

Lawmakers also rejected, on partisan lines, GOP proposals that would have made sharp cuts in the budget. Republicans argued that the Legislature, rather than the governor, should decide the spending priorities.

"We all know the budget will be pared by the governor," Assistant House Minority Leader Thomas Ewing, R-Pontiac, said after the Legislature had approved major appropriations bills. "I hope the rhetoric and threats will be put aside now that the campaign is over."

There are no indications that will happen.

Thompson has insisted the Legislature's budget plan will require reductions in state general revenue appropriations of at least $370 million, or about 4 percent across-the-board.

Senate plans carnival, camp

By PEPE CONRAN
Staff writer

Three senators discussed plans for Flash Camp and a carnival as well as heard various ideas from former student body presidential candidate Dan Beaman at Wednesday's Summer Student Senate meeting.

Senate Speaker Denise Wasetis took attendance and Senator Diane Richardson and Senator Tim Taylor were present. Two senators were absent.

The senate will compile its information on Flash Camp, an orientation weekend for freshmen planned for Aug. 28-30, at a 2:30 p.m. meeting on July 8.

The student senate plans to hold a carnival on September 26 and 27. The carnival is being coordinated by former senate speaker Joe O'Mera and will provide various games and activities for both the campus and the community.

Dan Beaman, who is not a student senator, proposed various ideas to the senate regarding the students and the campus.

Beaman would like to see a volleyball sand pit, or sand court, installed on campus.

Charleston vies for steel plant site

By MATT HORTENSTINE
Staff writer

A Charlotte, N.C., based steel firm is strongly considering building a 500 employee, high-tech steel mill in the Charleston area.

Although not officially confirmed at the state or local level, Nucor is the company which reportedly toured the Charleston area this Monday.

"I still can't confirm the name of the company that visited," said Buddy Foster, director of the Charleston area economic development foundation. "But I can say that there was a meeting between state officials, including the governor (James R. Thompson), and the officials of the company involved."

"I think we had a very productive meeting," said Foster. "A very important meeting of industry officials, state officials and officials from companies that will provide affiliated services. But now we wait, we won't know the outcome of the meeting for several weeks," Foster said.

The other companies involved were Norfolk Southern Railroad, Conrail, Central Illinois Public Service and Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company, he said.

Officials from the company arrived in Charleston early Monday morning. They toured the city and the proposed factory site, 500 acres of land north of Charleston. They attended a luncheon in a private residence in Charleston Monday afternoon.

"We've been given a chance to give it our best shot, and I think we did," Foster said. "Charleston put its best foot forward."

Following the meeting, the company officials went to Clark County to view sites near Martinsville and Casey before leaving Illinois.

Lynn Morford, spokesperson for the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, would not comment. "It is our policy to keep information about those contacts confidential until the company chooses to release any information," said Morford.

A spokesperson for Nucor also declined comment in a telephone conversation, however, he did confirm reports that Nucor is considering Charleston as a site for future development.

Reportedly, Nucor is also considering sites in Indiana and Ohio. "We have been asked some time ago not to say anything about this. There's been an awful lot of publicity about this in Indiana, but we're close to a yes or no. I don't want to do anything to jeopardize our chances," said Dale Huffington, executive director of the Clark County economic development corporation.

"Any industry like this we need badly, all rural counties need something like this. But we have to be careful. Anything we, or anyone except the company, would say about the decision process would be speculation," he said.

Rives: state budget cuts cause for hiring freeze

Eastern President Stanley Rives Wednesday announced a general hiring freeze due to a no-tax-increase budget for higher education as the Illinois General Assembly adjourned.

No tax increase will result in more than $370 million in state budget cuts according to Gov. James R. Thompson.

This freeze will mean that all vacant positions or positions that become vacant will not be filled except for faculty positions essential to staff classes. "Vacant positions," Rives said, "may be filled only when a vice president establishes that the position is essential to the operation of the university."

This action is being taken because of the uncertainty of the final 1987-88 appropriation for Eastern. The final appropriation will not be known until Thompson signs the appropriation bill expected in late July.

"We want to preserve some flexibility until we know for sure what the Governor is going to do," Rives said. "We will find that out later this month."

Visnack inquest planned

An inquest into the death of former Eastern student Douglas A. Visnack, 1905 E. Main St., Urbana, will be held July 13 at the Champaign County Coroner's Office, said Deputy Coroner Ron Kieth Wednesday.

"At the inquest a six-person jury will decide the manner of Visnack's death," said Kieth.

Visnack, 22, died June 20 of massive head injuries sustained on June 18 when he apparently jumped from a car driven by Sandy L. White, 27, of Charleston.

Visnack was taken to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center and was later transferred to Burnham Hospital in Urbana where he died.

The accident occurred on Illinois Route 130, one mile north of Fox Ridge State Park at 10:17 p.m. June 18.

Krehbiel named acting music department chair

BY MELANIE ANDERSON
Campus/activities editor

James Krehbiel, a music instructor of 20 years at Eastern, has been given the opportunity to serve as acting chairman of the music department.

Krehbiel replaced DuWayne Hansen who has accepted a position at the University of Akron as director of the school of music.

"It's okay. I feel flattered and somebody has to do it," Krehbiel replied as he shared his feelings about taking on the position as chairman.

Krehbiel is not overly enthused about his current status in the music department. His first love is "teaching."

"It's not the position I trained for. I like teaching, primarily. It's a diversion taking time out from teaching," he said.

When asked if he had ever given the position any thought Krehbiel says, "One always thinks about it but I have no interest in doing it on a permanent basis."

In spite of his love for teaching, he admits that the summer was an excellent time to begin his reign.

"It's a good time to start, so you can work your way in gradually and learn the ropes."

He also added that teaching was something he planned for and that this is not a step up, it's just something totally different.

Krehbiel finds his new line of work to be somewhat of "a lot of budgets and a lot of pastey little items and day-to-day things."

"Teaching is just exciting. Dealing with young people keeps you young," Krehbiel said.

Joseph Martin, assistant chair of the music department for 11 years is a part of the new chair search which hopes to make a selection by Jan. 1.

"As far as I know our request for advertising has been given to our college dean, Vaughn Jaenike, and he is forwarding it through the appropriate channels," Martin said.

Constitutional rights put under the axe

Congress must take every measure to block the nomination of ultra-conservative U.S. Appellate Judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court if the basic rights of individuals are to be upheld in future court decisions.

The predictable resignation this week of Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell strikes a major blow to a balance between liberal and conservative philosophy on the high court.

It was something liberals knew was likely to come before the end of Reagan's presidency, but now that the fact is a reality, the proportions of this imbalance are at the forefront.

Last summer, when Justice William Rehnquist replaced Warren Burger as chief justice and another conservative, Antonin Scalia, was named to the Supreme Court, little changed in the ideological makeup of the Court.

But, as we warned then, the repercussions of three Reagan nominees to the court would be felt for years to come.

Now, with the resignation of Justice Powell, Reagan has made yet another Supreme Court appointment, thus giving a 5-4 advantage to a conservative philosophy in our justice system.

In effect, what we have, even though the days of the Reagan era are numbered, is the impact of the Reagan-Meese-Rehnquist influence into the next century.

Judicial decisions in areas such as abortion rights, affirmative action and race relations, rights of criminal defendants and the death penalty could take a turn for the worse. Authoritative rights will have a stronger voice than individual rights.

The nomination of Bork, if he is eventually approved by Congress, would be a devastating blow to the basic rights of citizens. Even though it is unlikely Reagan will ever appoint someone with more liberal leanings, Congress must take a firm stand against the White House on this issue.

Even a more moderate-conservative appointment would be a better compromise than endangering the individual's basic rights as outlined in the Constitution's Bill of Rights.

Lets not celebrate the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution by destroying our constitutional freedom.

Oral's not following sainthood rules

Oral Roberts must think he's a saint. I think he's sadly mistaken.

Last week, during a speech to some of his fellow ministers out in Tulsa, Oral claimed that not only has he raised the dead several times during his illustrious career, but that after his death, he will rule alongside Jesus Christ.

Statements like those make his followers sit up, take note and send money. But Oral obviously doesn't know the first thing about being a "real" saint; he's not following the three cardinal rules of sainthood:

1. Real saints don't have names like Oral.

OK, maybe he couldn't help it; maybe his parents gave him that name. He should've changed it, because real saints don't have adjectives for names, especially not adjectives describing body parts (Anal, Nasal, etc.).

Real saints have strong names such as Peter, Paul or Mary. John is a good saint name too, as is Abraham, Ruth, Joshua, Isaiah and Whitney. Not Oral.

2. Real saints don't brag about their past, present or future accomplishments.

Oral tells us he's raised the dead and that he's going to rule alongside Jesus Christ someday. But he's not. Real saints don't tell of their accomplishments just to make themselves out to be better than everyone else; real, honest-to-goodness saints won't even mention the hole-in-one they made in '73 to win the local pro-am golf tournament.

Can you imagine Mother Theresa going around telling everyone how saintly she was because of the good she did for the people of India? No way. She knew the rules of sainthood.

3. Real saints, while recognizing the necessity of a good miracle now and then, won't put God on the spot by demanding one.

I firmly believe this is where Oral screwed up a hope for sainthood. Anyone who knows anything about religion knows you can't call up God, tell your sob story, and expect a miracle to just happen. You have to need the particular miracle for which you're asking.

For example, I think Moses and the Hebrews needed a miracle when faced with the Red Sea and hundreds of Egyptian chariots behind them. I don't think Oral needed $8 million—although with the state of the TV evangelists' empires these days, maybe he could've used the cash. But it hardly compares to the Hebrews' plight.

Actually, I think we'd all be much better off without people like Oral claiming to be above everyone else—but who am I to say?

After all, I'm not striving for sainthood.

—Diana Winson is a staff writer and regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News Summer Edition.

Experiencing a culture; gratefully

Essay

Dan Beaman

Is it life?

People, colors, drugs, laughter, music, culture...

No, it's the Grateful Dead weekend.

Each year the Grateful Dead come to Alpine Valley in East Troy, Wis. for the weekend. Each year all kinds of people attend. Precisely why, I am not sure. But somehow they unify.

From the likes of Yale graduates caught in the grips of Yuppiehood to natty headed, unclean Deadheads mumbling, "doses, 'shrooms" to passers by.

The band can be either loud or soft, fast or slow, but they maintains an ongoing quality. They are hypnotic.

Hypnotic in the sense that their rhythmically mesmerizing tunes inspire trancelike dancing by a large contingency at every show.

Or the fact that their leader, Jerry Garcia, is often lovingly referred to as "the fat old man" who bar moves around on stage. They've released only one album in the past seven years. Yet, they have been together for over 20 years and their following seems to get larger every year.

A smaller faction travels around the country every show. They are known as Deadheads. They tour the nation feeding off every show and surviving communally. They peddle or barter their wares and camp out; partying late into the night with the sound of the Dead filling the air.

Why do these people base their lives on the tour? They seem to be happy and content. And is happiness what we strive for in life...be it materialistic or spiritualistic. Some people choose to drive BMWs and others travel to Dead shows. The choice is ours...whichever we choose, or both.

To me the reason the Grateful Dead still tour is to unite different types of people to celebrate through sharing culture, drugs, music and laughter. Through these experiences we acquire a better understanding of ourselves and others. We should be grateful for these opportunities and take advantage of them. Some are grateful. Some are dead.

Band pours on the '60s music despite rain

By MATT HORTENSTINE
Staff writer

Despite a driving June shower, the University Board took Eastern "Back to the '60s" Tuesday with its first entertainment event of the summer.

While originally planned as an outdoor theme event, the rain forced The Secret Agent Band to set up in the Union Station where it played hits from the '60s from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

"With the weather like this, a lot less (students) will show, but we're going to have a good time anyway," said Rick Resnick, Secret Agent's lead singer.

The rain did limit the size of the event. But many students, attracted by free submarine sandwiches and free tie-dyeing, attended the event. The ARA Food Service supplied the 20, two-foot-long subs.

Gina Moon, the University Board's co-coordinator for summer activities, added to the event by setting up a free "tie-dye," where students could dye their own shirts, pants or anything else worth tie-dyeing.

"A lot of students, attracted by the music and free food, popped in and out all evening," Moon said.

Many older students returning to Eastern for additional education were attracted to the event by the music of their era which was being played by the band.

Jim Campbell, a 35-year-old high school science teacher, remarked, "They (Secret Agent) sound pretty good; a lot like the Turtles."

Moon said the UB sponsors entertainment events every summer. Another theme event, a back-yard barbecue with free ice cream, frisbees and watermelon, is planned for mid-July.

thought."

The balloons were being passed out at the celebration by Jingles the clown. Rawls said that the passing out of balloons was a part of the Hour House's Clown Together Program, which visits local schools to talk about drug and alcohol prevention.

Also at the celebration, pony rides were being given to area children by Happy Trails and Humboldt Go 4's 4-H Club.

"Yeah, I thought it was a lot of fun," said Megan Jacobs, 8, "No," Jacobs said it wasn't her first time riding a pony, and "Yes!" she said she would like to ride the pony again.

To help prevent area children from being missing with no identification, McGruff the Crime Dog was on hand at the celebration. His picture was being taken with the children as they came through the line. Also, dental records and finger prints of the children were taken and filed.

"I think it's very beneficial," said Cindy Babb, mother of one, of Charleston. "I think that they should do this every year. I'm glad to have my daughter's picture and finger prints on file."

The main reason why the date of July 1 was picked as the anniversary or birthday of WEIU-TV and WEIU-FM is because almost everything significant at the two stations revolves around that date, said John Beabout, director of WEIU-TV and general manager of both the radio and television stations.

"On July 1, 1985, WEIU-FM was formed and on July 1, 1986, WEIU-TV was formed on cable Channel 51," said Beabout. "July 1 is a big day for us. The only thing that didn't have its start around July 1 is our TV news program, which first started broadcasting last fall and on the area cable system last January."

"Also, last July 1, we received a community service grant from the corporation for public broadcasting (PBS).

Area groups reveal plans to celebrate Fourth of July

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Staff writer

Students unable to make it to their hometowns for the Fourth of July weekend have plenty of area celebrations to choose from.

In Charleston, the Kiwanis Club is having the annual Kid's Day at 8:30 a.m. at the Rotary Pool. Kid's Day will feature swimming races, sack races and a pet show with cash prizes, said Charleston Kiwanis President Mark Hutti.

They will also present a band show at 1 p.m. at Kiwanis Park on Harrison Street. The bands scheduled to perform are Flashback, Westcott, Epperson and Davis and Basic Blend.

The fireworks display will begin at dusk at the campus pond. Hutti said this year's display is "twice as big as usual," and should last about 45 minutes. Admission to all events is free, Hutti said.

Lincoln Log Cabin is presenting an old-fashioned Fourth, with volunteers dressed in 19th century clothing. Political speeches pertaining to pertinent issues of the day, such as the slavery issue, will be presented by volunteers playing one of Lincoln's family members or neighbors, said Randy Jackson, assistant site manager.

The staff will play a game of rounders, the forerunner to baseball. Vistors often join in, Jackson said.

A militia in period dress will perform military exercises and a volunteer playing Tom Lincoln will auction pies, Jackson said. Admission to these events is free.

Mattoon begins the Fourth with a bang beginning with a parade at 9 a.m. starting at 21st and Western Streets and ending in Peterson Park. This will be followed by the Picnic in the Park, sponsored by the Exchange Club.

Peterson Park will have food and game booths sponsored by various area organizations, said Mattoon Jaycees President Barbara Shewmake. "It'll be a big surprise," Shewmake said of all the events planned.

At dusk the Jaycees will begin the fireworks display at Peterson Park. "It'll be longer than last year's," Shewmake said.

Sullivan is having a parade around the square on the Fourth. The parade starts at noon, said Lota Priddy, secretary with the Sullivan Chamber of Commerce.

No history of fireworks injuries

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said there is no problem with illegal fireworks here that he is aware of.

It is illegal to set off any explosive fireworks without a permit, although non-explosive novelties such as sprinklers are allowed, he said.

Johnson said he knows of no serious injuries or arrests related to illegal fireworks in recent years, he said.

If someone is caught with fireworks, the police will usually confiscate them without an arrest if the person is cooperative, Johnson said.

Lomax quarterback job in serious jeopardy, for now

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Wit Neil Lomax out of sight and out of mind, three other St. Louis Cardinal quarterback, including unsigned first round draft choice Kelley Stouffer, are working out daily at Busch Stadium hoping they can seize the No. 1 job.

"I think the guys that are here really want to play and turn this organization around," said the nine-year veteran, Cliff Stoudt, who unseated Lomax for two games last year. "It's up to you to be here depending on how bad you want to play."

A month before training camp, the quarterback derby has three known quantities: Stoudt, Stouffer, and Kent Austin, a 12th-round draft pick in 1986.

QB IV, at least for now, is Lomax, a six-year veteran who prefers contrary to the wishings of Cardinal Coach Gene Stallings—who prefers to spend his off-seasons in his home in Portland, Ore.

Stallings has made his philosophy clear that football is a year-round sport, and last season the Cardinals cut loose a backup quarterback, Scott Brunner, who opted not to move to St. Louis.

Stoudt is from Oberlin, Ohio; Stouffer from Rusville, Nebraska; and Kent Austin from Nashville. All of them have, however, moved to the area.

"As soon as the Cardinals drafted me I felt like this was my home," Stouffer said.

Most of the team has gotten the message, and a mixture of veterans, rookies, and free agent hopefuls congregate at the Stadium for sprints and weightlifting. The only notable absence has been Lomax.

"I don't think he's doing anything different than he has the last few years," said Stouffer in his defense of Lomax.

This year, though, isn't like the last few years. Lomax has been the starter for most of his six seasons with the Cardinals and is one of the highest paid players in the league at a reported $875,000., but he isn't exactly dealing from a position of strength.

Since 1984, when his performance rated a Pro Bowl appearance. Lomax's numbers have slipped noticeably. He had 28 touchdown passes in 1984, 18 in 1985, and 13 last year. In 1986, the Cardinals were last in the NFL in scoring with 218 points, an average of only 14 per game.

he Cardinals reportedly shopped Lomax around before the draft, but could find no takers. Then came the selection of Colorado State's Stouffer, not exactly a vote of confidence.

But if Lomax is worried about job security, it hasn't showed. He attended a three quarterback camp conducted by Stallings in May, and says he spends a week out of every month in town. "I can't shoot off a big red flare every time I'm here," he said in a telephone interview. But he has refused to submit to the program.

"This is going to be my seventh year in the NFL, and I've been a starter since my ninth game of my rookie season," Lomax said. "If I was going to be a rookie, I'm sure there would be some question about my work habits."

"I know what I need to do."

Lomax, who works out with former Cardinal Scott Holman and several Seattle Seahawk free agents in Portland, said he follows a training regime prescribed to the team by the Cardinals strength coach LeBaron Caruthers.

"I'm sure Neil is working out as hard as he would if he was here," Stoudt said. "he's got a lot of off-the-field interests that keep him at home, and he's all wrapped up in his religious work and commitments to his family."

Stoudt, Stouffer, and Austin have a different set of commitments.

"I'm trying to be a leader," Stoudt said. I've been here all off season. I've worked with these guys all off season. He (Lomax) hasn't.

"The guys on the team see who's been working. And that means a lot."

Lomax is only 28, but Stoudt, 32, calls Stouffer the "man of the future" for the Cardinals.

the rookie's progress may be delayed because of stalled contract talks, a tradition with the Cardinals. The team's last three No. 1's held out from the start of camp.

Former Eastern grid star excited with being named to Eastern's Hall of Fame

By LEE DIEKEMPER
Sports editor

Former Eastern grid standout Ted Petersen has had a few highlights in his career. None the least of which is obtaining two Super Bowl rings as an offensive lineman for the Pittsburgh Steelers in the late 1970's.

But the thing that he treasures as much as his Super Bowl rings is the honor recently bestowed upon as he was elected to the Eastern Athletic Hall of Fame.

"I'm very honored to stand up to the best honors that Eastern gives to its athletes," said Petersen from his home in Pittsburgh. "Eiu is very special in my heart because that is where I began to stand out in football."

Petersen was drafted in the 4th round by the Steelers as a center, and played for the Steelers for six seasons. In the 1979 championship season, Petersen broke the starting lineup by way of a injury to Jon Kolb, left tackle. Previously, Petersen was a backup to All-Pro center Mike Webster.

"I played the last three games of the regular season, and the last two games in the playoffs, prior to the Super Bowl," said Petersen.

"I would have liked to have started the game, but if Kolb was healthy I would have rather had him in there because it was better for the team," Petersen said. "It turned out alright, we (Pittsburgh) won the Super Bowl, and I got to play a substantial part of the game," Petersen added.

After Petersen's stint with the Steelers, he played two seasons with the Cleveland Browns. While playing for the Browns, one of his teammates was another Eastern alumni, punter Jeff Gossett. Gossett is also being inducted into the Eastern Athletic Hall of Fame at the same time that Petersen is.

"That makes it (being elected to the Hall of Fame) even more special because I played with Gossett at Eastern, and with the Browns," said Petersen. Jeff and I are great friends.

Ted Petersen

Petersen said he was looking forward to coming back to Eastern and being inducted in the "Hall", but he wishes Gossett would be there also.

I doubt that Jeff will be there because it's the day before a game, and the coaches wouldn't let him leave for a day, being the day before a game," Petersen said.

One of the few setbacks that Petersen had was not making it to the Division II playoffs with Eastern.

"We went 4-0 in our first four games when I was a senior, and we thought that we had a chance. But our quarterback went out with an injury, and we just didn't have the depth at that position," said Petersen.

In 1978, two years removed from Eastern, Petersen witnessed Eastern's championship on TV.

"That day I was so happy," said Petersen, "I wish I could have been there. That day sticks out as much as winning two Super Bowls."

Today, Petersen co-owns a food service business with former Steelers great, and future NFL Hall of Famer, Franco Harris. Petersen is a certified teacher in Illinois, but not in Pennsylvania, and Petersen is going to get his certification in Pennsylvania. He has been offered a number of coaching positions, but needs the teacher certification.

"Whatever I get into, I like to give it 100%," said Petersen.

He certainly gave 100% on O'Brien Field with Eastern.

Panther Pant to be held later this month

Panther Notebook/

Dan Verdun

Entries are now being accepted for the 22nd Eastern Panther Pant, a 12½-mile road race that winds through the Coles County countryside.

The race, the second oldest in Illinois, will be held at 7 a.m. July 25. A request for entry applications may be sent to Dr. Thomas Woodall, Lantz Building, Charleston 61920 and must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

There is a $5 entry fee and applications must be postmarked by July 18. A $7 late fee is charged for people entering up to race time.

In conjunction with the Panther Pant there is a four-mile 'Short' Pant on the same day open to anyone "who doesn't have the fitness level required of the longer distance," Woodall said. To enter the Panther Pant, you must be able to average 7:30 minutes per mile.

Both races have a common start-finish line located near Taylor Hall on South Fourth Street. The Panther Pant follows Fourth Street through the country to the Moore House and then back to town.

Leather engraved billfolds will be presented to the top 22 finishers in the Panther Pant. Top male and female finishers in four age groups, 17 and under, 18-25, 26-35 and 36-older, will receive awards in the four-mile race.

John McInerney, former Eastern distance star, is the defending champion. However the race record is held by Joe Sheeran who ran a 1:15.50. Peggy Cleary of Ohio has the fastest women's time in 1:15.24.

The Short Pant male-female records are held by Mike Larson and Molly Jackson who ran a 20:07 and 24:22, respectively, last summer.

DeVita in AFL

Quarterback Sean Payton isn't the only former Panther playing in the Arena Football League. Former Eastern linebacker Rob DeVita is on the Denver Dynamite roster.

Whereas Payton has yet to see action for Chicago, DeVita has played plenty for Denver.

DeVita, who quit Eastern's team during the 1985 season and transferred to Illinois Benedictine College this past season, has made his presence known.

DeVita recorded a key sack of Chicago quarterback Mike Hold in the overtime period of the AFL's initial game televised by ESPN in Denver's 52-44 win at the Rosemont Horizon.

Local recruit

Charleston High School graduate Kelly Heath has signed a national letter of intent to participate on Eastern's women's track and field team for next season.

The granddaughter of Eastern physician Dr. Jerry Heath, she comes to Eastern with personal bests of 17-0¼ in the long jump and 5-2 in the high jump. She was selected by Charleston coaches as the Female Athlete of the Year.

Prairie State Games

Eastern Sports Information Director Dave Kidwell will serve as a media center coordinator for the Prairie State Games in mid-July.

Kidwell will work in conjunction with Jim Flynn of the Illinois High School Association. Both have worked together in the past at the Games as well as the IHSA state track and field finals which are held at O'Brien Stadium each May.

White Sox will resign Hoyt

CHICAGO (AP)—LaMarr Hoyt's free-agent odyssey, which began with his release from San Diego for drug-related problems, will end with his return to the White Sox in Chicago, where he won the 1983 Cy Young Award, said a report published Wednesday.

Hoyt's agent, Ron Shapiro, told the Atlanta Journal that Hoyt has agreed to accept an offer from the White Sox, one of a handful of clubs said to have expressed interest in his services.

Eight new members elected to Hall of Fame

Eastern honors former athletic standouts in ceremony this week

By LEE DIEKEMPER
Sports editor

The sixth group to be nominated for induction into Eastern's Athletic Hall of Fame have been announced by the athletic department.

J.D. Anderson, Jimmie Lewis Franklin, Jeff Gossett, the Rev. Jim Hutton, Don Johnson, Ted Peterson, Helen Riley and Myron "Jim" Tedrick will be inducted and bring the number of those in the Hall of Fame to 53.

The selections were made by the EIU Letterman's Club. The inductions will take place Sept. 19 at the Eastern-Illinois State football. The game is the home opener for the Panthers.

The induction will be held before the game with a dinner and listing of the accomplishments of the inductees. The inductees, or representatives, will then be introduced at halftime of the Illinois State game.

Anderson, a three-time all-conference first baseman and a two-time all-conference football player, played in the Philadelphia Phillies baseball organization for three years. Anderson currently is a professor in the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation at Northern Iowa. Anderson coached UNI baseball for eighteen seasons, 1966-84, and women's basketball for four years, 1981-84.

Anderson graduated from Eastern in 1953.

Franklin, currently a professor of history at Vanderbilt University, was Eastern's faculty representative to the NCAA for eleven years, 1975-86.

During Franklin's tenure as NCAA representative, Eastern's greatest growth and success came about. Franklin was a history professor at Eastern from 1970-86 and served as director of Affirmative Action for three years, from 1973-75. Franklin

I'm greatly surprised and excited to be elected to the Hall of Fame. I was very excited when the teams began their upswing while I served as the NCAA representative.

—Jimmie Lewis Franklin
Eastern's 1975-86
NCAA Representative

was also the chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletic Board.

"I'm greatly surprised and excited to be elected to the Hall of Fame," Franklin said. "I was very excited when the teams began their upswing while I served as the NCAA representative."

"I would like to think my role was great, but it was minimal, if I had any impact on decisions at all," Franklin said.

Gossett was a football and baseball standout at Eastern in the late 1970's. Gossett is currently a punter for the Cleveland Browns. Gossett still holds the records for triples in a season (7) and career (14). He also led the nation in punting average in 1977 with a 43-yard average.

Before Gossett turned to pro football, he spent time in the New York Mets organization as an infielder.

Hutton was a football and track standout in the pre-World War II years.

Hutton earned all-state recognition as well as all-conference honors as a defensive and offensive lineman. Hutton was also conference champion in track as a weightman.

Hutton, a Charleston native, earned a bachelor's degree in education and later earned a master's degree in theology.

Johnson lettered three years in football and was the leading scorer in 1948 when Eastern earned a Corn Bowl bid. Johnson was a unanimous pick for all-conference in 1948.

Johnson also made a name for himself on the track. He once held the school record for the 220 with a 22.4 time. Johnson retired in 1985 after serving as a teacher for 36 years. He was named High School Teacher of the Year in California in 1972.

Johnson graduated from Eastern in 1949.

Tedrick lettered in four sports as a student at Eastern. Tedrick earned 11 varsity letters competing on the gridiron, the baseball diamond, the basketball court and golf course. Tedrick made his biggest impression on the diamond where he played all nine positions. Tedrick was also named to baseball coach Charles "Pop" Lantz's all-time team.

Jeff Gossett

Tedrick graduated from Eastern in 1937 and retired in 1975 as County Superintendent of Schools after 38 years in the teaching profession.

Riley, who is being honored posthumously, was nationally recognized as an authority on hockey, basketball and softball. Riley coached all three at Eastern until her appointment as associate director of athletics for women in 1974. Many of her field hockey teams were nationally ranked.

Riley continued as assistant director of athletics for women until her death in 1976.

Anderson, Gossett, Hutton, Johnson and Tedrick could not be reached for comment.

Football boycott, lights in Wrigley, AL West

This is the first time this bureau has appeared in print in just over 1/10 of a score (translation: two years, two months). To mark this momentous occasion, I will, as Steve Martin and Robert Plant would say, "just ramble on." This form of writing is more commonly known as "random notes."

It seems as though Cal Berkeley Chancellor Ira Michael Heyma is some sort of radical. At the NCAA convention being held this week in Dallas, Heyma stated that, "Abolishing football bowl games and post-season basketball tournaments may be the only way to rid colleges of the continuing morass of scandal."

This is an interesting statement in two ways.

First, as an avid sports reader and hopefully a soon-to-be professional sports journalist, I have never come across the word "morass," especially in the sports pages.

In Daniel Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, morass is defined as, "marsh, swamp." For some reason, I never thought of collegiate sports corruption as a marsh. Cars and money usually come to mind first when thinking of this subject.

Second, is Heyma really that concerned with college sports scandals? Or is Heyma just tired of seeing Bobby Knight break telephones, and watching Bo Schembechler stomp his headphone sets into the ground?

If Heyma is serious, banning all collegiate sports is, as Frank Zappa once said, "Like treating a headcold by decapitation."

Using Heyma's mentality, college administrators should be flogged in public for not coming up with a better system for add/drops.

Lights at Wrigley

The Illinois legislature is pondering a bill that would let the Chicago Cubs play post-season and all-star games at night in Wrigley Field.

Although I'm not one to lose sleep over anything that happens to the Cubs, I'd like to see if Dallas Green has any guts and gets a court injunction to sue NBC and ABC so that they could play day games in the playoffs. It would be sort of amusing though, to watch the Cubs play their home playoff games in—God forbid—Busch Memorial Stadium.

But the Cubs making the playoffs is an entirely different matter.

Football Cardinal boycott

The Rev. Jesse Jackson has called off his proposed baseball boycott set for this weekend. Jackson is hinting that he will call for a boycott of the NFL this season, if the NFL owners don't step up their hiring of minorities in the teams' front offices and coaching staffs.

The way the St. Louis citizens and Football Cardinal fans admire Cardinal owner William V. "Bill" Bidwell these days, half the city will join in the boycott, no matter what the purpose of the boycott is.

Old bones

Have you looked at the AL West division standings lately? The all-geritol team, the Oakland A's, are breathing fire down the neck of division leading Minnesota. I guess Tony LaRussa promised to have all their social security payments raised if they win.

If Minnesota or Oakland wins the division, LaRussa or Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly should get the AL Manager-of-the-Year award.

Unfounded faith

It looks like the Chicago Bulls and the Los Angeles Clippers are the big winners in this year's NBA draft. The Bulls played wheeler-dealer, got the man they wanted, Scottie Pippen. The Clippers also traded for seven-footer Artis Gilmore.

I wouldn't look for Gilmore to set the world fire though. He is big, and he might be the answer to the Bulls' problems at center. Don't bet on it, only is he up there in years (38), but he is also a man who led San Antonio to the first pick in the draft this year.

Payton's retirement

Earlier this year, Philadelphia 76er, and future Hall-of-Famer, Julius Erving retired. To commemorate his last game in the Boston Garden, arch-rival Celtics hung a red No. 6, Erving's number, in the rafters of the Boston Garden and all the rest of the retired numbers of past Celtics legends.

That just goes to show you the class of the Celtics and their fans.

Since Walter Payton has announced that this is his last with the Bears, it would be nice if on all, the teams in the NFC Central could do the same for Payton as the Celtics did for Erving.

I'm not a Bears fan. But Payton is a first-class guy. His records, especially his early days with the Bears, speak for themselves. The NFL should reward a person of his stature.

It looks like Jack Clark is going to be the Cardinal in generations to hit 35 home runs on the right side in a season. This, mind you, is while Clark's home games are in the spacious confines of Busch Stadium.

With the year that Clark is having, what would he have done if he played in Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium, Wrigley Field, or Fenway Park?

Don't let anybody tell you different. Sports Forum is the unofficial sports column of the Summer Olympic Games.
